Equine massage or Magna Wave therapy is not to be used in lieu of veterinary care

Massage therapy is a very useful preventative measure in performance horses. It provides relief to fatigued muscles, tendons, and ligaments while helping to prevent further injury and damage. Conditions such as acute muscle injury are benefited by massage therapy in addition to medical therapy. Magna Wave creates more cell permeability; thus, medications and liniments may be absorbed more than intended.

Current medications/supplements:

I understand that Diamond K Equine Massage & Rehab is never a replacement for proper veterinary care. I understand that Kristina Pfaff is not a veterinarian and will not diagnose conditions or prescribe medications, nutraceuticals or supplements for my horse.

Once a massage or Magna Wave session is scheduled, it is the owner/trainer's responsibility to keep the appointment, also to have a handler with the horse. A 48-hour cancellations notice is mandatory, only with the exception of an emergency situation.

I, Kristina, reserve the right to decline or stop treatment on a horse if I see fit, until a veterinarian is consulted and given permission to massage or Magna Wave.

----- By initialing, I give consent for Diamond K to use photograph(s) of my horses for posts on Diamond K's Instagram and Facebook page. If photographs are used for education of a medical condition, no names will be used to maintain client/patient confidentiality.
